

The Beginning of The End

James walks into his dad's hospital room

Others have been there before him as there is flowers

He looks over his body and places his hand on his head

His dad has been unconscious for 8 days now without signs of waking up soon

The doctor comes into the room with a clipboard in his hand as he looks over James dad as well

Hospital Room

James

- “Well this is it huh doctor? There’s nothing else we can do?”
- “Well I guess it’s time to take him off the life support and let nature do it’s thing. I didn’t want to do this. But i have no choice.”
- “If you don’t mind doctor I would like some time with him.”

Doctor

- “I’m sorry James, but the condition he’s in he won’t be waking up from this.”
- “Alright James. You want me to take him off right now or would you like some time with him?”

Final Goodbye

James walks over and takes a seat next to his dad.

Tears roll down his face
as he looks at his dad's unconscious body.

“Well dad this is the end of the chapter.
You’re the reason why I kept going in life and why I never stopped. Without I couldn’t be me. I thank you for all you done. And one day
we’ll reunite again.”

Taking Matters In His Own Hands

James starts walking out the room when he suddenly turns around to look at his dad again.

He then looks at the pacemaker keeping him alive.

He walks up to it and unplugs causing the heart monitor to make that eerie noise

The doctor comes running into the room and has a shocked face at the situation and looks at James with confusion.

James just stares at him and walks out of the room while tears descend from his eyes.

